User Research & Experiment Readout - Q1 FY27

Tiffinly Foods Pvt. Ltd. | April - June 2026 | UX Research and Product Analytics

Research lead	Divya Nair, UX Research Lead	Date	18 July 2026
Analytics	Rahul Desai, Product Analyst	Audience	Product, Design, Kitchen Ops

1. Summary

- Smart Pause & Skip v2 reduced 30-day subscriber churn from 9.6% to 7.3% in the A/B test (EXP-0412). It shipped to 100% of subscribers in all four cities on 14 July 2026.
- NPS rose from 41 (Q4 FY26) to 44 (Q1 FY27). Complaints about pausing and skipping fell sharply.
- Family Plan will launch at Rs 3,999 per month for 4 members, based on the pricing test (EXP-0419).
- Inconsistent spice level is still the biggest complaint. Spice Meter is helping where users adopt it.

2. Research methods

Method	Sample	Purpose
In-depth interviews	18 subscribers (6 per persona)	Understand why people stop or cancel meals
In-app survey	2,340 responses	NPS and reasons behind the score
Support ticket analysis	12,800 tickets (Jan - Jun 2026)	Find the most common problems
Usability test of Smart Pause prototype	8 users	Check that people can pause without help

3. Key insights

#	Insight	Evidence
I1	People do not say "pause". They say "stop my food", "hold my tiffin" or "I'm going home for Diwali". Labels in the app should use the user's words.	14 of 18 interviews
I2	Cancelling felt easier than pausing in v1, so people cancelled and planned to come back - most never did.	Exit survey; interviews with Rohit-type students
I3	Working professionals decide about tomorrow's meal late in the evening, mostly between 7 PM and 10 PM.	App event logs; interviews
I4	Families want one bill and one delivery slot for several people, not separate subscriptions.	Meera-type interviews; survey
I5	The same dish tastes different on different days because spice levels vary between kitchens.	Top detractor theme in survey

4. Jobs to be done

- When I travel at short notice, I want to stop tomorrow's meal in seconds, so I don't pay for food I won't eat.
- When I go home for the holidays, I want my subscription to wait for me, so I don't have to sign up again.
- When I order for my parents, I want one plan for the whole family, so I manage one bill instead of three.

5. NPS and complaints

NPS for Q1 FY27 is 44, up from 41 in Q4 FY26. Breakdown: promoters 55%, passives 34%, detractors 11% (55 minus 11 = 44). The OKR target is 50 by the end of Q4.

Complaint theme (share of detractor comments)	Q4 FY26	Q1 FY27
Inconsistent spice level	26%	27%
Late delivery	20%	22%
Repetitive menu	17%	18%
Packaging leaks	11%	12%
Difficulty pausing or skipping meals	21%	9%
Other	5%	12%

6. Usability test - Smart Pause prototype

7 of 8 users paused meals without help (task success 87.5%). Median time to pause was 38 seconds, compared with 26 hours to resolve a pause ticket in Pause v1. The one failure came from a user who looked for the word "stop" instead of "pause", which supports insight I1. The button label was changed to "Pause / Stop meals".

7. Experiment EXP-0412: Smart Pause & Skip v2

Item	Detail
Dates	2 June - 29 June 2026 (28 days)

Item	Detail
Population	Mumbai and Pune subscribers, random 50/50 split
Sample size	24,600 subscribers (control 12,310; variant 12,290)
Control	Pause v1 (full-week pause through a support ticket)
Variant	Smart Pause & Skip v2 (one-tap skip, date-range pause, wallet credit)
Primary metric	30-day subscriber churn

Metric	Control	Variant	Change	Result
30-day subscriber churn (primary)	9.6%	7.3%	-2.3 pp (-24.0% relative)	Significant: p = 0.003; 95% CI -3.6 to -1.0 pp
Pause-related support tickets	1,840	480	-74%	Beats PRD goal G2 (-70%)
Pausers who resumed within 30 days	-	68%	-	Beats PRD goal G3 (60%)
Kitchen food waste (guardrail)	2.1%	2.4%	+0.3 pp	Holds: limit is 3%
Wallet credit at 100% rollout (guardrail)	-	Rs 14.6 lakh / month	-	Holds: limit is Rs 18 lakh

Decision: SHIP. The 24% relative churn reduction clears the 15% bar in the PRD rollout plan and both guardrails held. Rolled out to 100% of subscribers in all four cities on 14 July 2026. Note: variant churn (7.3%) is still 0.3 points above the 7.0% target in KR1.1. The save flow (FR-09), released on 10 July, is expected to close the gap.

Hyderabad cut-off (answers PRD open question OQ-2): because Hyderabad kitchens procure at 9:00 PM, the skip cut-off for Hyderabad is set to 8:00 PM the previous day. All other cities keep 9:00 PM.

8. Experiment EXP-0419: Family Plan pricing

Item	Price A	Price B
Monthly price, 4-member plan	Rs 3,999	Rs 4,499
Visitors to plan page (21 days, 9,800 total)	4,910	4,890
Conversion to Family Plan	4.1%	3.2%
Revenue per visitor	Rs 164	Rs 144

Decision: launch Family Plan at Rs 3,999 per month. The lower price converts better and earns more revenue per visitor, even though each subscription is cheaper.

9. Spice Meter - early results

Spice Meter lets users set a spice level from 1 (mild) to 5 (very hot), and the kitchen sees it on the order slip. 46% of subscribers set a preference in the first 6 weeks. Among those users, spice-level complaints fell by 31%. Across all users, spice is still the top complaint (27%), because adoption is not yet universal.

10. Next steps

- Prompt every subscriber to set a Spice Meter level during onboarding (owner: Kitchen Ops squad).
- Track whether the save flow (FR-09) brings churn below 7.0% by the end of Q2.
- Rename "Pause" to "Pause / Stop meals" in all app screens, push notifications and help articles.
- Answer PRD open question OQ-1 (loyalty streak during a pause) before Tiffin Points launches in Q2.

11. What subscribers told us (selected quotes)

Persona	Quote	Linked insight
Working professional, Bengaluru	"My trips get fixed the night before. If I can't stop tomorrow's lunch by 9, I just waste it."	I3
Student, Pune	"I cancelled before Diwali because I was going home for three weeks. I forgot to sign up again."	I1, I2
Family planner, Mumbai	"I pay three separate bills for me and my parents. One plan would be so much simpler."	I4
Working professional, Mumbai	"Monday's paneer was mild, Thursday's was fire. Same dish, same kitchen."	I5
Student, Pune (after Smart Pause)	"Now I just hold my tiffin for the holidays and it starts again by itself."	I1
